About Tsinghua Holdings

Tsinghua Holdings was formed in 2003, when China's State Council decided that universities should split their enterprise and academic functions. It is wholly-owned by Tsinghua University and several of its subsidiaries are listed on exchanges in China. It directly manages eleven subsidiaries including chipmaker Tsinghua Unigroup, technology park developer Tus-Holdings, and IT and security company Tsinghua Tongfang. Tsinghua Holdings has spearheaded some of Beijing's most ambitious efforts to acquire overseas technologies and form joint ventures with global firms including HP and Intel.
