Jupiter Systems' Control 500, PixelNet and Fusion Catalyst display wall processors are installed in enterprises throughout China. Jupiter controllers are employed by the Beijing, Shenzhen, Changsha, and Fujian Province Police Bureaus; coal mines in Pingdingshan, Yitai and Puda; on highways in Ruixun and Dechang; the Beijing, Macau, and Shenzhen traffic bureaus; Tsinghua University; and in power generation and distribution facilities in Hubei, Wuhan, Hunan, Liaoning, Qinghai, Guangzhou, Jiangxi and Shandong. The company recently deployed its largest installation in Asia with a PixelNet system in Macau.

"Jupiter Systems' early investment in China through its wholly-owned subsidiary, an experienced sales and service team, a strong base of Chinese partners, and the industry's highest quality, most reliable products all set the stage for these strong results," said Chuck Kelley, Chairman of Jupiter Systems China. "The record investment in infrastructure that has fueled China's rapid economic growth has contributed to Jupiter's success, delivering our best quarter ever."

"The success in China of Jupiter's high performance display wall processors are the result of an ambitious, long-term sales strategy," said Guomin Zhang, General Manager of Jupiter Systems China. "During the past year Jupiter has created a national sales and service organization across China. We now have presence in Beijing (North China), Shenyang (Northeast China), Xi'an (Northwest China), Wuhan (Central China), and Chengdu (Southwest China). In addition, we moved our China headquarters from Shenzhen to Beijing. We are committed to the Chinese market and look forward to expanding our participation in this extremely strong market."
